Conflict of Interest Policy – Building 4 Our Future

Draft prepared Oct 22, 2026

1. Purpose

Building 4 Our Future (the "Corporation") exists to serve its charitable mission, not the private interests of any person. This policy protects the Corporation's tax-exempt status and public trust when a decision might benefit a director, officer, or other insider personally. It is based on the IRS sample policy for charities and Illinois law.

2. Who is covered

This policy applies to every director, officer, Executive Director, member of a committee with Board powers, and any staff or founder with substantial influence over the Corporation (each an "Interested Person" when a conflict exists).

3. What is a conflict of interest

A conflict exists when an Interested Person, or a family member or a business they own or control, would gain a financial benefit from a decision, contract, or transaction involving the Corporation, or has a competing duty that could affect their judgment. Examples:

- the Corporation buys services, space, or products from a business owned by a director, officer, or founder;
- the Corporation licenses curriculum, content, or a brand from, or to, a for-profit business owned by an insider, such as a company the founder also runs;
- an insider or a relative is hired or paid by the Corporation;
- an insider accepts a gift or favor from a vendor, funder, or partner of the Corporation;
- an insider uses the Corporation's name, donor lists, or contacts to promote a personal business.

"Family member" means a spouse or domestic partner, parent, child, sibling, grandparent, grandchild, or in-law of the person.

4. Duty to disclose

An Interested Person must disclose every actual or possible conflict to the Board Chair and Secretary as soon as they learn of it, and must disclose all material facts to the Board or committee that will decide the matter.

5. Procedure

1. Disclose and step out. After disclosing and answering questions, the Interested Person leaves the discussion and the vote. They do not try to influence the decision.
2. Compare alternatives. The disinterested directors decide whether the Corporation can get a better deal elsewhere. For any significant transaction they review at least one alternative, if reasonably available.
3. Vote. Only independent directors with no interest in the matter vote (Bylaws Sections 6.4 and 10.2). They decide by majority vote whether the transaction is fair and in the Corporation's best interest. They approve it only if it is fair to the Corporation.
4. Write it down. The Secretary records in the minutes the names of the persons who disclosed, the nature of the interest, who left the room, the alternatives reviewed, and the vote.

6. Compensation

No person may vote on their own pay or the pay of a family member. Compensation of officers, directors, founders, and the Executive Director is approved in advance by the disinterested directors, based on comparable pay data, and documented in the minutes when the decision is made.

7. Related businesses

Any contract, license, loan, cost-sharing arrangement, or shared use of staff, space, or content between the Corporation and a business owned or controlled by an Interested Person must be in writing, priced at or better than fair market value for the Corporation, and approved under Section 5 before it begins. The Corporation keeps its own accounts and records separate from any such business.

8. Violations

If the Board has reason to believe someone failed to disclose a conflict, it will give that person a chance to explain. If the Board finds a violation, it may take corrective action, up to removal from office or service.

9. Annual statements and review

Each covered person signs the statement on the next page when they start and every year after. The Secretary keeps the statements. The Board reviews this policy at least once a year and checks that the Corporation's arrangements with insiders follow it.

10. Schedule A: Known relationships

The Secretary keeps this schedule current. Entries marked "confirm" are as reported by the founder on October 22, 2026 and must be confirmed by the person named in a signed annual statement.
